

ATG EUROPE

“ATG Europe is an innovation driven service provider for the space sector”

About us

ATG Europe BV is an international pool of companies with over 400 employees with different locations in Europe (the Netherlands, Italy, Ireland, Spain, France, Germany and the UK). The company is a technology driven engineering service provider operating in domains such as space, aeronautics and defence. With vast expertise in (thermo-mechanical) engineering, (structural) product development, (computer generated) communication content creation and immersive reality interface design, ATG delivers innovative solutions for clients worldwide. Its focus on advanced technologies and consultancy services ensures it remains at the forefront of industry advancements.

Solutions

We aim to support our customers to be even more competitive through cost reduction, quality increase and risk mitigation.

We do this by:

- Providing excellent, domain-specific and pragmatic engineering support.
- Developing ultralight carbon composite architectures at competitive cost levels.
- Optimising operational processes through the use of novel technologies (immersive reality, artificial intelligence).
- Engaging our customer’s customers through engaging visual content (animations, virtual reality, videos).

Company highlights

Since 2015 ATG holds a patent on an internally developed novel carbon composite structure architecture.

This so-called grid-stiffened architecture is specifically relevant for key structural parts of launchers, satellites and payloads, as it provides a mass reduction of up to 30% at increased stiffness levels and similar cost level as current baseline structures.
